Kai Creative Writers!

It's been an interesting year to say the least. British Airways have taken to the skies once again, and we've been as busy as ever but now we want to hear from you! We need the citiZens of KidZania to write the latest article for our magazine, High Life. Whether you travelled or not, we want to hear about what you got up to during your summer holidays!

Using the mindmap template below, plan out your article by answering some key questions about your summer. After you've jotted down a few bullet points, use the writing template to get your article started!

Where did you go?

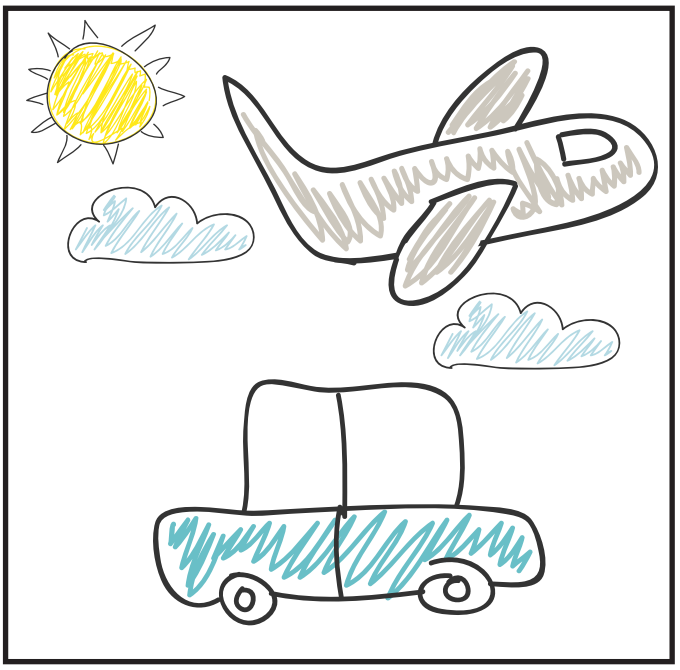

I went to the New Forest this summer. We stayed in a caravan which I've never done before and there was a field of horses right next door!

How did you get there?

We got to the New Forest by train. We were going to drive, but dad thought the train would be nicer because we can look out of the window and see lots of different places. I love going on trains, so even though it took a long time, I really enjoyed myself!

What activities did you do?

We went to lots of different museums, there was one all about cars that my sister loved! We sat on a little minature train and sometimes we swam in the sea.

Who did you go with?

I went on holiday with my dad, my grandma and my sister, we had lots of fun together because it was our first holiday for a long time!

What did you enjoy the most about your summer?

I liked being on the beach and eating ice cream. Some days it was really hot so we could play outside and go for long swims. I liked exploring new places and staying in a caravan was lots of fun because it's so different to a house!

RIGHTZKEEPERS EXPLORE THE UNITED KINGDOM

Where have the KidZania RightZKeepers been this summer?
Check out their staycation suggestions in the High Life interview below!

Bekha – Peak District, England

This year I visited the Peak District in the North of England. I'd never been before, but I was very excited to go! There were lots of places to explore and plenty of places to hike!

Me and some friends visited the Mining Museum which tells you all about the industry and even lets you experience how children were treated down the mines!

Urbano & Bache – Brecon Beacons, Wales

Bache and I went to Wales this summer! We camped near the Brecon Beacons National Park and saw some amazing things! The park is famous for star-gazing so we took some binoculars and stayed up all night.

The sky looked incredible and Bache really enjoyed morning walks across the cliffs. I would highly recommend you visit!

Vita – Dartmoor, England

Dartmoor is beautiful. It's perfect for someone like me who loves wildlife and photography! I saw bee hives, wild foxes and even spotted lavender in one of the fields.

You can wild camp in the Dartmoor National Park so I stayed near one of the rivers and caught sight of three different fish species the first day I arrived! I can't wait to go back next year!

Beebop – Jura, Scotland

I'd never been to Scotland before, so visiting Jura for the first time was a huge surprise. It's a very remote place which means it's Zuper quiet! There are lots of lovely walks you can go on, and because there is hardly anyone living on the island it makes it the perfect place to get stuff done.

I practised my instruments every day whilst I was on holiday. I could concentrate on my art, and nobody ever bothered me! The perfect trip for those who want to work but enjoy time away from home!

Chika – Holkham, England

I love being by the sea. I try to do a different beach every year, and this summer me and my friends visited Holkham which is in Norfolk. We stayed in a cute little hotel and had a brilliant time. We swam in the sea every day and explored the different pine forests to see what we could find.

I made a scrapbook of the different type of leaves I found – I can't wait to show Vita! We had fish and chips on the sand, and watched the sunset on our last day; the perfect way to end our lovely staycation!
